THE MOST DAUGHTERS—Mrs. Richard Sullivan, 1208 Walnut St., was honored at the Mother-Daughter banquet last Saturday night at Proximity YMCA for having the largest number of daughters present. They are, left to right, front row, Colie, Anita (on Mrs. Sullivan's lap), Becky; back row, Patricia Ann, Barbara Lee and Jeanie. The Sullivans also have two sons. Mr. Sullivan is employed in the Engineering Department of Cone Mills.

USE EASTER SEALS—My name is Marcia Stewart, and my Mother and Daddy are employed in the Minneola Plant of Cone Mills Corporation at Gibsonville. For a long time now, we have known of the wonderful work of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. Take me, for example. Since I can't walk, I have my school at home. Now, who pays my teacher for coming to my house? It's the local chapter of the Society for Crippled Children. And that is not the whole story by any means. The funds collected during the Easter season help pay for medical care, wheel chairs, braces, crutches and many other things for large numbers of boys and girls like me. We are depending on you to help us to help ourselves. Be sure to use your Easter Seals this year. They stand for all the fine things being done for us.

Souther Discusses Nep Reduction

Hobart Souther, head of Cone Mills Laboratory, was among the speakers from this country and abroad who presented progress reports at the recent 1954 Cotton Research Clinic at Pinehurst. The reports involved improvements in cotton carding and spinning of the fibre. This is written up in America's Textile Reporter for March 4.

Mr. Souther told the clinic that science is making headway in the struggle for reduction of neps. Valuable and useful information in determining the efficiency of old and new processing machinery may be obtained by application of nep count techniques at all stages of processing, he indicated.

The control of neps can best be obtained by proper adjustment and maintenance of cards according to test results to date, he stated.

"It has been found in our laboratory studies that cards remove neps whereas other processing steps increase neps. The nep count increases considerably in processing from seed cotton through the gin, and from blending through picking operations where it reaches a maximum, then decreases in carding, depending on card adjustments, and again increases slightly through drawing operations."

Mr. Souther continued by commenting that improper processing causes more variations in nep count than differences in fibre properties, such as fineness.

"Variations in nep count due to fineness may be reduced to a minimum and necessity of frequent testing of bales eliminated if cotton is carefully purchased and carefully blended."

Golf Tournament Entry Blanks Ready

Official entry blanks for the Cone Mills 1954 Golf Tournament are now ready. They may be obtained from Wade Jenkins, Proximity Plant Personnel Office; Will Marshall, Revolution; Norman Pinkerton, White Oak; Leo Redmond, Print Works and Fay Gilbert, White Oak and Proximity YMCA's. The playing period for qualifying rounds of 18 holes will be the week of April 17-25. The tournament begins on Monday, April 26.

Green fees are to be paid by the individual player. Designated place of play is Green Valley Golf Course.

All matches will be played at the convenience of the players. Reservations may be made with Aubrey Apple, pro at Green Valley. Pairing sheets will be posted at the golf clubhouse and at both Proximity and White Oak YMCA's. Scores will be entered by competing players upon the completion of a match, and winners can find their next opponents. All matches must be completed in one week.

Dog Lost

Mrs. Garnett Smith, 1410 Cypress Street, is asking information about her lost dog, Susie, light brown female Mexican Chihuahua (mixed), wearing brown collar with brass nail heads, probably with a piece of rope attached.

The dog strayed somewhere in the vicinity of the White Oak Post Office and the Proximity Store.

REWARDED FOR SUGGESTION—William F. Bean, employed in the Finishing Department at Proximity Plant, first shift, is shown proudly looking at the check he received from Cone Mills Corporation for a suggestion he made. Mr. Bean suggested placing a track over the dry cans to make easier the removing and replacing of cans when they are repaired. This reduces labor time involved in this task.

RELIC—About 20 years ago, the Card Room employees of Chadwick-Hoskins posed for their picture outside the mill. Six of those working then still work in the Card Room of the Pineville Plant of Cone Mills Corporation. First row are Shirley S. Williams, left, now retired, and William C. Vick, second from right, now assistant overseer of the third shift. Second row are Robert Moore, fourth from left, and Rufus B. LaFey, fourth from right, now assistant overseer of second shift. Third row are Leonard Hook, left, Faint S. Satterfield, fourth from left, and J. D. Koeffe, third from right. Children and grandchildren of others pictured also work at the Pineville Plant today. (F. S. Satterfield owns this photograph.)

The President's Report On Foreign Trade

President Eisenhower's report to Congress on foreign trade came as no surprise. It was expected that he would follow pretty closely the recommendations made by his Randall Commission, particularly since Mr. Randall, Chairman of the Commission, was added to the President's staff shortly after he finished his work on the Commission.

In analyzing the Commission's report and the President's message to Congress, it is well to realize that there are many dissenting opinions by members of the Randall Commission.

The matter of foreign trade is of particular importance to the textile industry, and of course, neither the Randall Commission nor the President singled out any industry in making observations or recommendations. That would have been impossible. On the other hand, it is absolutely necessary that Congress take full cognizance of the effect that any act they might pass in connection with foreign trade would have upon any of the major industries in this country.

The United States' textile industry cannot afford to have tariffs reduced on textiles. There is not a single country in the world with a major textile industry that is not looking at the United States with eager eyes as a place where they would like to sell a sizeable part of the production of their mills. There is not a single one of those countries that has costs comparable with ours. The cost of production in this country is considerably higher than any of the competing foreign nations. At this particular time, it is our guess that our textile industry is in a worse plight than textile industries of most other nations.

No one would propose that the elements that go into making up our costs could or should be reduced so as to make our cost of operations on a level with costs of foreign mills. Such a move would play havoc with the standard of living in the United States.

There are other industries in this country that would not be seriously affected if all tariffs were removed. Those industries, therefore, may be willing to support the Randall Commission report and the President's recommendations, but certainly, even those industries would be shortsighted in so doing as ultimately they would suffer if the textile industry were seriously hurt by foreign trade policies.

No one person, not even the President of the United States, should be given the power to ruin an industry by discretionary tariff action.

An objective study of what has happened in foreign countries insofar as their own import of textiles is concerned will reveal that our tariffs and restrictions are less drastic than practically any other country in the world; in other words, this country has been increasingly hurt in her exportations of textiles during the past few years by government action taken by a great many nations.

Although we feel that the principles behind the thinking of the administration have some logical background, we know that the United States cannot afford to lose its textile industry by making it non-competitive, not only in foreign trade but also here at home.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

...by George S. Benson
President of Harding College

A group of 50 people sat in a small private motion picture preview room in New York City recently. They watched intently as a sound-slide film entitled "The Future of America" was given its national preview. At the end of the 25-minute presentation, a man sitting near the rear of the room turned to the person on his right. "This story makes me a piker," he said. "I've been uncertain about our economic future, and so I've been holding back on building a new home. Now I'm going ahead and build."

The thing that had eased his uncertainty about America's economic future was the dramatized story of our dynamic economy, the measure of its continuing growth, its unlimited frontiers with their ever-widening opportunities for all Americans.

Here are some of the facts: In 1953 there were 4,000,000 babies born in the U.S.A. That's a record. And our people are living longer than ever before. By 1960 our population will be approximately 180,000,000. Constantly more jobs are being created. Total employment, including agriculture, was 62,000,000 in September, 1953. This is 17,000,000 more jobs than existed in 1939.

Although our population has had a net shift of almost six million away from the farms since 1940, we have at the same time increased our farm production to higher levels than ever before. We have 80 percent more high school graduates in our population than in 1940. School enrollment totaled 32,796,000 last year. College enrollment has increased 55 percent since 1940.

We're making great technological progress. Today only 5 percent of the work is manual; 95 percent is done by machine. We're eating better. We're drinking 18 percent more milk per person, eating 33 percent more eggs, and 5 percent more meat, fish and poultry per person than we were at the end of World War II. Forty-million American this year will get paid vacations. We have entered the Atomic Age and are witnessing a miraculous advance in industrial chemistry.

When all the facts are reviewed our citizens can be enthusiastic about the economic potential of our nation. There is only one big IF in the picture. These advances are sure to come IF we safeguard the basic elements of the American private enterprise system and give it the freedom and incentives that keep its life and strength surging forward.

The Harold B. Jarrett American Legion Auxiliary of Salisbury entertained at the Legion Home on Lincolnton Road, Thursday evening, March 18, honoring the 7th birthday of the post, Miss Ruth Kesler, unit president, welcomed the guests and presented the commander and past commanders with gold cuff links as a token of appreciation for their cooperation during the past years. Mr. Carroll Earnhardt led the group in singing old familiar favorite songs and Mrs. Dillon Rabon presented several interesting games and stunts. A big three tiered birthday cake, decorated in blue and gold, colors of the legion auxiliary, was centered attractively on the refreshment table. The club room were decorated with spring flowers.

The Harold B. Jarrett Post was organized seven years ago by a small group of World War II Veterans and has grown in number each year with a present enrollment of 300. During the early days when there was little money in the bank the Post was offered the use of the Salisbury Mill's club house on Ryan Street by Mr. Claude Morris, and met regularly there until, with a lot of hard work and determination on the part of both legion and auxiliary, two years later when a beautiful new clubhouse of their own was built on Lincolnton Road. This building is located on a slight incline at front with the back side of the home being on the ground or basement floor. A new barbecue pit has been recently added and the grounds have been beautified.

The commanders have been: James F. Kesler, Dillon P. Rabon, John A. Campbell, Jimmy Dan Littleton, Thomas Hefner, Kenneth Holshouser and John Burns Trexler.

Scouting Contains Many Opportunities

The three programs of the Boy Scouts of America—Cub Scouting, Boy Scouting and Exploring—contain many opportunities for boys to develop leadership ability.

Members select their own leaders and those who advance to greater responsibility often train the boys who succeed them. In these leadership opportunities the boy faces a widening and deepening of his own thinking. He trains himself so that he can take over additional duties, while taking part in a program that gives him fellowship, personal progress, adventure and opportunities for service to others.

Boy Scout leaders proudly point out that 15 members of their National Executive Board, which supervises the management of the organization now 3,300,000 strong, were Boy Scouts in Scout Troops.

Since 1910, more than 21 million persons have been identified with the Boy Scouts of America. Many have become leaders in their communities. Some hold the highest elective positions in the nation and others are leaders in their respective vocations.

Victor Ridder, New York publisher, and Frank L. Weil, New York attorney, both active in Scouting over 40 years, are veteran members of the National Executive Board. Both led Boy Scout Troops in the earliest years of the organization.

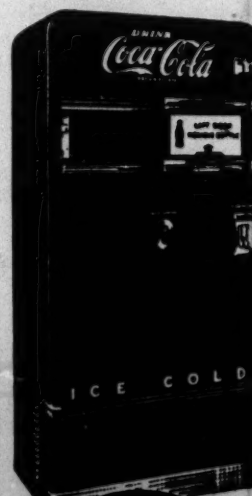

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson was an Assistant Scoutmaster and Scoutmaster from 1918 to 1929. Kenneth K. Bechtel of San Francisco, a vice president of the National Council, was a Scout from 1916 to 1919. He is president of the Industrial Indemnity Company.

Norton Clapp of Seattle, Wash., president of a lumber company, became a Scout in 1918 and for 14 years was an Assistant Scoutmaster. William H. Frattidge of Chicago, executive vice president of "Popular Mechanics" Magazine, became a Scoutmaster in 1935 of a Palo Alto Troop.

Leonard K. Firestone off Los Angeles, president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., of California, became a Scout in 1919 and E. J. Thomas of Akron, Ohio, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., became a Scout in 1913 and later was an Assistant Scoutmaster.

The most interesting and most exciting games of bowling took place last Monday night at the Proximity YMCA when the Rayon Office defeated the Payroll Office two games to one in what I can call top notch bowling.

The Rayon team was led by Roger Johnson, 112, 192, 97 and "freball" Jack Hughes, 95, 100, 94, who did some outstanding bowling. Just as equally hard fighting was the Payroll team. James Weaver, 101, 112, 112 and Howard Pickard, 94, 124, 105 of the Payroll were the top bowlers for the night, having sets of 325 and 323, respectively. They said "the Payroll must go through," but it failed when "pony express" Charles Rink (Rayon) bowled 101 his last game, defeating the Payroll by only two pins!

On Tuesday night at the Proximity YMCA, the league leading Proximity Goats defeated the Laboratory three games to none to remain in first place. Jim "under pressure" Fuller (this title really fits him) led the Goats getting assistance from Ray Smith, who actually was not up to par. Fit Seabolt and Harvey Coffey were the top bowlers for the Lab, but they also fell under their usual scores.

At the White Oak YMCA, "Big" Jim Ward came through again to lead the Proximity Comets three games to none over the Revolution Office. Joe Mitchell, 106, D. O. Myrick, 102, and Gordon Williams, 98 also bowled outstanding games, proving that they getting in shape for the tournament.

Revolution's score Tuesday night was not indicative of what they will do in the tournament, because this team has some of the outstanding bowlers in the league.

High team game and set for this week go to the Rayon having a total of 473 and 1403 pins, respectively.

High individual game goes to Howard Pickard of the Payroll with a score of 124 pins, while high individual set goes to James Weaver, also of the Payroll, with a score of 325 pins. High individual average for total games bowled goes to Ray Smith with a total of 97.1 per game. Howard Pickard with a total of 97.

Governors Once Scouts

Governors Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Allan Shivers of Texas, Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana, Howard Pyle of Arizona, Herman Tamm of Georgia and Francis Cherry of Arkansas were Boy Scouts. Gov. Kennon became an Assistant Scoutmaster of a Troop at Minden, La., with which he is still affiliated. Many leaders in Washington were Scouts or helped to lead them. Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, William O. Douglas and Tom Clark, were Scouts. Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, was one of America's first Scoutmasters in 1911. Other Senators who were Scouts include William F. Knowland of California, John Sparkman of Alabama, Robert C. State College, and Father Carl Reinert, president of Creighton University at Omaha, Nebraska.

Dr. Franklin D. Murphy is chancellor of the University of Kansas. A former Eagle Scout is Dr. John H. Fischer, recently appointed superintendent of Schools at Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Paul A. Siple, military geographer of the Department of Defense, was an Eagle Scout in 1928 when he was selected a member of the first Byrd Antarctic Expedition. He had important leadership posts on three additional Antarctic expeditions.

Another former Eagle Scout, Dr. Mont A. Cazier, head of the Entomology Department at the American Museum of Natural History, served extensively during World War II in insect control work in the Chinese and East Indies areas. Two former members of a Canton, S. D. Troop are Dr. Merle A. Tuve who helped to develop the proximity fuse, and Dr. Ernest Lawrence, a Nobel Prize winner, who invented the cyclotron.
